Reno and Sparks would benefit from more Montessori schools that are open to the public and not just for the wealthy, like this school would be. I highly support this school and know that students in our county will have access to excellent education if it opens.

With an ever growing and changing community with a diverse population, we need more schools that will provide high-quality education for Reno /Sparks area. As a parent, and an educator, I am in strong support of NNWM becoming a charter school in our valley. Families need more options and opportunities for their children when it comes to school. This charter school will bring Montessori education access to many who have not had the opportunity to learn with this methodology.

My my son went to a monastery preschool and it was the best thing we ever could have done for him. He is neurodivergent and learned basic skills needed to take care of his self and his surroundings and learned early academics. Montessori has a wonderful policy of inclusion and meeting children where they are. I honestly feel that it was the best thing we could have done for him now that he is 27! He learned skills during preschool Montessori that he uses to this day.

I am writing to express my enthusiastic support for the proposed Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori Charter School in Reno, NV. As both a resident of Reno and an advocate for high-quality education, I believe this school will offer invaluable benefits to our community. Northern Nevada Wildflower embraces the Montessori philosophy—fostering each child’s natural curiosity, independence, and academic growth in a thoughtfully prepared environment. This approach empowers students to become self-directed learners and confident thinkers. The school will provide a welcoming, inclusive setting for families who seek an educational model that respects and nurtures each child’s individual pace and interests. By offering another choice in public education, it strengthens Reno’s overall educational ecosystem. Studies consistently show Montessori-educated children outperform in reading, math, problem-solving, and executive functions. Launching this charter promises long-term educational returns—for students, families, and our broader Reno community. For these reasons, I strongly support the charter’s approval and urge your vote in favor of bringing Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori to fruition. Our children deserve the opportunity to thrive in a learning environment rooted in respect, exploration, and excellence. Thank you for considering this important addition to our public education system.

I am so excited to have a new, fully Montessori school in Reno. Reno is in need of alternative learning opportunities and the folks involved in the Wild Flower school are amazing, committed teachers. This addition to the area will allow more children an opportunity to have a Montessori education experience they could not get in the public sector.

I am in support of Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori becoming a state sponsored charter school. As a Northern Nevada resident and former Primary Montessori teacher, I see the need for Montessori education options in the area. Kelly Rider is a dedicated to bringing quality, free Montessori education opportunities to every demographic. With WCSD shifting to school choice, charter schools are seeing less demand for enrollment.

It is mind boggling that the charter authority would consider putting a second charter Montessori School in the Reno market which would compete head-to-head with High Desert Montessori School, a 22 year old charter school. If you approve this charter application, it could ultimately lead to the demise of both schools, because neither will be able to stay full. Montessori pulls from a very limited and unique group of families. There is not enough in the Reno market to fill both schools.

If the application is approved, it should be contingent on pulling from a different group of students, perhaps Spanish Springs and NOT Reno/Sparks.

We need more public charter Montessori schools to increase access to high-quality, student-centered education for diverse and underserved communities. A charter public Montessori will help preserve equity, while instilling core values in children such as independence, curiosity, and respect for the natural environment.

Traditional Montessori education is often only available through expensive private schools, making it inaccessible to many families. Public charter Montessori schools remove financial barriers and can serve students from a wider range of socioeconomic backgrounds. We need more schools that focus on hands-on, individualized learning, with the flexibility of a charter model to innovate and adapt to community needs.

As the retired principal and executive director of High Desert Montessori Charter School, I noted many similarities within this application to those within the charter of High Desert Montessori Charter School including the proposed location of the school and the partners in education. I don't think it is right to take components of a 23 year old successful school and make it your own.

I do not support the opening of this school or the proposed leadership.

Opening a new Montessori charter school in an area already served by an existing charter school using the same pedagogy is a bad idea due to the inherent limitations of the student niche and potential enrollment concerns. Montessori education, caters to a specific educational preference and a segment of the population that actively seeks this alternative. Introducing a second school in close geographic proximity risks splitting an already limited pool of interested families, leading to under-enrollment for both schools. This could strain resources, dilute the quality of programs, and ultimately jeopardize the financial stability of both schools, undermining their ability to provide the unique educational experience they promise.

Please do not approve the charter of this new school as it jeopardizes both the new school, and the existing school.

I'm excited to support a new Montessori charter school in our community. Having more high-quality Montessori education options for families is highly needed in Reno.

Bringing a tuition-free Montessori school to our area will open doors for many families who may not have had this kind of learning experience as an option before. It's about giving parents more choices and giving kids a chance to thrive in a supportive, student-centered environment.

I fully support this new school and look forward to seeing the positive impact it will have on students, families, and the whole community.

There is substantial demand for an additional state public charter school in Reno, and the Montessori curriculum will be a unique option for our community. Having worked at Doral Academy of Northern Nevada, I know how long the waitlist/lottery system is. The demand is there and I believe strongly the Northern Nevada wildflower Montessori team will do amazing things!

Kelly Rider and her team would be a great asset to the community via Wildflower Montessori school. I've worked with her and she has high (but reasonable) standards for her students and those she works with. Since she has seen some of the flaws at her previous school, she knows how to make for a better school.

I am writing to express my support for the establishment of Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori School. This charter school will bring high-quality, student-centered education to the Reno-Sparks community. As a current Montessori teacher and parent, I understand the need for more access to the education that authentic Montessori schools offer. I believe we need more Montessori schools in northern Nevada and that Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori will provide an innovative and enriching learning environment for students of diverse backgrounds throughout our region.

The Montessori approach is well known for fostering independent, self-motivated, and inspired learners through hands-on experiences, individualized learning, and collaborative work. By integrating this method with rigorous academic standards, Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori will offer students high-quality education that is inspiring and focuses on the needs of every child developing their critical thinking and problem-solving skills essential for their future success.

The establishment of NNWM will provide families with an alternative public education option that prioritizes academic excellence, individualized learning, and community connection. I wholeheartedly support this initiative and urge the approval of this charter school to benefit our students and our community.

I'm incredibly excited to welcome Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori Charter School to our community! As a mother of a Montessori-educated child, I've seen firsthand the profound impact that child-led, values-driven learning can have. Now, as a grandmother, the idea of my grandchild attending a school that nurtures independence, curiosity, and a deep respect for others and the environment fills me with hope and gratitude. Wildflower's mission aligns beautifully with what I believe every child deserves — a meaningful, inclusive education rooted in compassion and community.

I feel allowing Wildflower to open would be very beneficial to this community. As a single mother wanting the best learning opportunities for my child but having to worry about cost of tuition and if I will be able to afford the education I desire for my child weighs heavy on me. Having options that include tuition free or scholarship programs within a Montessori charter school gives me hope my child will have the opportunities I did not have and wish I would have had as a child. And the real world hands on teachings of Montessori learning will have a positive effect on our community as a whole and not just those who can afford it.

As someone whose life has been shaped by Montessori education, I am writing in strong support of Wildflower Montessori's application to the SPCSA. I was a Montessori kid myself. I attended Trinity Montessori in the basement of Trinity Episcopal Church in Reno. My own children attended High Desert Montessori. These experiences instilled in us independence, curiosity, and a love of learning that I see reflected in the way we approach challenges and opportunities throughout life.

The schools change over time, but the need for Montessori education in our community does not. It's essential that families continue to have access to this personalized, values-driven approach. Importantly, Montessori schools don't compete with one another; there are more than enough children to fill the seats. Each school adds to the richness of options available to Nevada families.

Wildflower Montessori's vision will expand access to this important model without the barrier of private tuition. I urge the State Public Charter School Authority to approve their application so that even more children can benefit from the environment that has been so formative for me and my family.

Respectfully,
Nicole Harvey

I believe firmly that Reno needs a school run on Montessori principles BY educators who are dedicated to Montessori principles and who operate by them. This is a team with proven individual teaching track records who know their craft and live the principles they teach to children. Our community needs this. A few years ago I met a woman who taught at a Montessori School. I was captivated by hearing all about this approach to education. I love that the emphasis is on a holistic approach nurturing independence, cognitive, emotional and social development. And most importantly critical thinking! So important in these times. Having grown up in the public school system the emphasis was on scholastics only. Kudos to Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori for bringing another model of this kind to our community!

We would like to lend our support to the creation of this school. The values that the school espouses and is looking to build in their school community are exactly the values that our Reno community needs. I'm looking forward to seeing them in action!

As an educator and advocate for high-quality, child-centered learning, I wholeheartedly support the charter application for Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori. Our region needs more public school options that honor each child's individuality while promoting academic rigor, creativity, and social responsibility.

Montessori education, grounded in decades of research, fosters independence, critical thinking, and a love of learning. Wildflower's unique model—with its teacher-led microschools, community engagement, and equity-driven mission—offers a powerful opportunity to serve diverse families in Northern Nevada.

This school will be a valuable addition to our public education landscape, and I believe it has the vision and leadership to make a lasting, positive impact.

As an educator and advocate for schools of choice, I strongly support the charter application for Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori. Nevada needs more high-quality charter school options that honor the diverse needs of families and children while building meaningful community relationships and providing relevant, rigorous curriculum.

Recent research comparing traditional schools to Montessori methods demonstrates compelling academic outcomes: students show 15% higher reading and math scores and 25% better self-regulation skills. These peer-reviewed educational studies reveal that Montessori pedagogy develops critical thinking, executive functioning, and independence—essential skills for lifelong success.

Why does Nevada need another charter school like this? As Helen Keller wisely observed, "Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much." Wildflower Montessori will not only serve individual students and families but will strengthen our entire educational ecosystem, providing a proven alternative that benefits the broader community through its emphasis on collaboration, environmental stewardship, and developing engaged, capable citizens.

As a parent, this truly moves me. The idea of a genuine Montessori school being created for children who have historically had less access to this kind of nurturing, child-centered education feels like a powerful step toward more equitable learning. Every child deserves to be seen, supported, and inspired. I wholeheartedly support this vision and would love to help however I can!

I'm so rooting for the implementation of Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori. Their proposed structure stays true to the spirit of Montessori, and they've put together an incredible team who can make sure their mission is successful, and stays successful through a long existence. It will be a dream to see historically marginalized children receive access to a style of education and support that can make a real difference in their life today and for the future.

A charter school for low income families is super important in this area. People's resources are stretched and Montessori schools are so needed.

It's incredibly encouraging to see an authentic Montessori school being proposed with equity at its core. Giving children from under-resourced and historically undeserved communities access to a learning environment that truly honors their individuality, curiosity, and potential. This school could become a cornerstone of positive change in the community!

I love the idea of bringing this school to the commonly. Montessori is a deeply nourishing form of education, when done well, and the team that has gathered to bring it into existence seems capable of creating and maintaining a well-run program that will greatly benefit the community.

I believe that the proposed Northern Nevada Wildflower Montessori is just what our community needs in Reno. Students of all income levels and communities should have access to quality education in the format best suited to their learning style. Having another public Montessori offering will be a huge benefit to the families of our community.

I heartily support the creation of NNWM, which would bring Montessori education back to its original intention of serving all students instead of those privileged enough to afford it. I look forward to seeing the impact they could have and provide parents with other, accessible options for their child's education. As a parent myself, I hope to see this school operational and succeeding.

This is incredible. So excited that this happening; how lucky is our community? I'm really pumped that this school is specifically, and intentionally, creating space and providing a safe academic setting for some of the most marginalized in our community. These gems are invaluable, now more than ever.

Montessori education is so beneficial for all children, but it is always reserved for those with the most privilege and resources. To make this type of education available to low income and marginalized kids and families is such a logical, and beautiful, mission!
